

Kajoli mothers' organizations have been set up in a number of villages where Kajoli centers exist. At many places they were started by mothers of children attending a Kajoli model center to which others join in over the years.

The purpose is to save an amount of money periodically by each mother which is used for eventual undertaking of some income generating activities. Part of the income is used to pay for the teacher's salary at each center and for the general well-being of the center, including building of the center premises. So far there are some 27th mothers' organizations set up mostly in the northern districts of the country. In one such center the mothers have leased a plot of land to grow rice and wheat, which has proven very successful. [See attached picture]. Others are likely to emulate this example.
